King Frederick William has set an example waten required, despite the peculiar wealth of the new peer, no little moral courage, and the Jews far and near will profit by it.

-A call has been issued by a large number of leading firms chroughout the country for a national convention of manufacturers, to meet at cleveland Ohio, on the 18.h of this month. This step is taken with a view of urgin; on Congress, early in its present session at Washington, the necessity of simplifying and changing the tax hat in such a manner as to remove burdens, as far as just, from the manufacturing interests of the country, and thus relieve and stimulate the productive industry of the country.

-In England it has been proposed and re ceived with favor o institute a system of accidental incurance for miners, the mine-owners paying the premiums and insuring the men, while, on the other hand, the companies are to issue policies, not to each individual by name, but for such a number of persons employed. The individual he wrong side. Enlightened by this severe miners might come or go without affecting the policy; and in case of fatal accident in the mine the insurace would be paid without reference to identity of the victims, but according to the number and rank of the men. In this way, with the least amount of trouble, the families would secure benefit from the insurance. -At Natal, Cape of Good Hope, in the case of the juterdict sought to be obtained by Dr. Colenso against the Ray. Mesers. Green, S. F. Robinson and Walton, for preaching, the court had refused the applica ion. The reverend respondents were to be cited in sividually to appear on the first day o next term to show cause why they should not so deprive of their licenses in the diocese. The Roman Catholic Bishop of Cape Town had been mobbed at Namaqual, and a mock religious procossion paraded before him; his absolution was asked for in derision, and his person pelted with filth by some ignorant members of the community, in consequence of his having baptized two illegitimate children. The better class protested against the outrage and sympathized with the Bishop.

-The Zoological Gardens which are projected for the Central Park in New York will, when completed, embrace the larges. zoological collection in the world The array of animals at present an exhibition, which form the nucleus of the grand project is either confined to the arsenal or scattered through the grounds. T a plat selected for the gardens is situated on Eighth-avenue, and is in the United States, and the whole country. bounded by Ninth-avenue. Seventy-seventh and Eig ty-first streets. Animals from every quarter of the globe will be domiciled in the building. The temperature of the air will be graduated to the natural climate whence they come, whether from the frigid or the torrid zones, and native keepers, acquainted with their disposition and wants, will be selected for them. -About "the questions of questions for the Pacific Rulroad"-hat of juel supply-the Sat Lake Vidette of the 16th ult. says: "There is no doubt in our mind that any amount of fuel can and will be found on the .in : of the road for the use of that great enterprise. We are personally knowing to enormous beds of coal, and numberless springs of coal oil, lying right alongside of the proposed route-beds of coal that give surface indications of their ability to supply the wants of the road for al. time to come. The Sick Poor.

To be poor is bad enough, but to be poor and sick-to be enfeebled by chill penury, and rendered altogether unequal for the struggie with disease, which, under the most favorable circumstances, taxes the vital force, is to be deprived of the inherent power, as it were, with which God has bl seed most of us to cope with the ills of life. It is one of the first recognized duties, therefore, of a Christian community to take care of these children of misfortune. Hospitals alone, however, do not meet the want. In all large cities there are "dispensaries" for patients in need of medical advice, who are not too sick to repair to these dis pensaries. Here they receive professional advice and medicines gratis. Our hospital accommodations, we believe, Our hospital accommodations, we believe, are ample; and we are aware that the city has provided substitute medical service, also, for the of call." The faculty of the Medical College, also, have a clinic, where gratuitous aid is tendered to the indigent. But there is still a neld here for the benevolent; one, too, which calls for but a small outlay of money, and which, we hope, will not be long permitted to which, we hope, will not be long permitted to the fallow. In other cities, both in Europe and in this country, the institutions to which we have reference are flourishing, and accomplish much good. All that is needed is a house with several rooms, and a few hundred dellars. pends to his advortisement: "Min sters of the year for the requisite medicines. There were, besides, two or three physicians attached to this dispensary who visited patients at their residences, when they were too sick to

About a year ago the younger members of the profession inaugurated such a system in Baltimore, and we learn from the Gazette that they have met with remarkable success. Since its commencement, their dispensary has resoph Bonaparte, at Bordentown, N. J., has just ceived only $1600. Progress of the Co-operative Movement.

strength and importance in England, that Parliament has taken up the subject in earnest and passed laws framed with a special view to promote the prosperity and good government of the societies which have sprung into exist
Of the societies which have sprung into exist
L. CHAPIN & CO. ence. The number of these societies is rapidly increasing. The "North of England Co-operative Wholesale Industrial and Provident Society" has fifty societies in the organization. There are co-operative societies, also, by which any community can make a great saving in parchasing food and clothing. There is in Sheffield, England, a cotton mill, called the "Sun Mill," which has been put in operation by working men on the co-operative plan, and which has sixty-nine thousand spindles and carding machines, tended by about three hundred men and girls, using up forty thousand nounds of cotton in a week. The building is a six-story brick building, about three hundred guats. feet long and one hundred wide. The enterprise was started about eight years ago, by workmen who had become convinced of the wisdom of using the advantages of combined skill and experience to their own benefit, instead of selling them at a low rate to a capitalist. A foreign correspondent of the Boston Journal gives an interesting history of the progress and success of this undertaking. The capital was put at $250,000, in shares of $25 each, and the shareholders were at liberty to pay in small instalments, so that a portion of their daily earnings might be set aside for that purpose, thus from the outset making the enterprise a sort of savings bank, which would not, however, return any dividend till the mill was in operation. The building was erected by shereholders, and one of their number was selected as agent to carry on the operations. but they burthened him with too much work, and this and other mistakes resulted, in 1864, in bringing in a balance sheet with $75,000 on lesson, the directors made a division of labor in the management, and with a success which. since then, in a little more than two years, has made good the loss, enabled the company to declare two semi annual dividends of four per cent. and two of five per cent., while the shares have been carried up to a premium of sixteen per cent. The largest shareholders, at the outset, had $2500, while many held only $25. The largest holder, at the present time, is one of the workmen, who has $6000. Nearly twothirds of the shares were originally paid at the classes in England by these m vements. Fac's like these are of interest to our own people, as similar movements are commencing but especially the South, feels its own prosperity dependent upon the elevation and welfare of labor. Any instrumentality which can accomplish this end, and which, at the same time, removes the antagonism between capital and labor, as these associations are said to do. is not only of advantage to workingmen, but to the country, which, in the improvement and content of the industrial classes, finds increased rate of one to five shillings a week. Various co-operative societies have taken up the stock, investing in it their surplus funds.

Among the rules rigidly adhered to in the establishment, and which are deemed absolutely essential to success, is, that in no case must there be any speculation, that there must be perfect system and division of labor, and that, as entirely indispensable, there must be good security for the general prosperity and order. The British Quarterlies.
